because he thinks he's just given a sworn statement that's going to let him off. That's the meaning of the question, what happens if the evidence comes back and it proves I didn't do it?
That's the point of saying, what happens,
hypothetically, if it comes back from Washington and it shows I didn't do it. Do you have any evidence that shows more than one person who did this?

Because he's gotten every indication

Capt. Lynch and Det. Pfeiffer don't know about the semen in Tyrone's mouth.

But, you know what?

He never thought they'd be honest cops. He never thought that they'd write that down, come in and tell you about it because that doesn't sound so hot; does it?

But, ladies and gentlemen, I'll tell you something, there are two things the State has to prove in this case, identity and state of mind.

And, contrary to what Miss Van Pelt said on her summation, we don't need that sworn written confession to prove that the defendant is the person who brutalized, raped, pilloried these children.

Felicia Newcomb, what did she come in here and tell you?

That the defendant on the phone said to her first he had to kick the door in, then the door was open, and then he says the last time he saw Tyrone was in the bathtub.

Significance of the towel, ladies and gentlemen.

Janie Bradley, is she lying when she says the defendant said "You'll read about it in the papers"?

Is Richard Price lying?

Wayne Card, is he mistaken?

Is he lying?

Shy, the defendant's cousin. Miss Van Pelt says, hey, you know the time if you looked at the clock.

Shy is just what her name implies.

She knows it's around 9:00 because that's what she looked at.

Dawn Troutman, when she gave that statement to Det. Lavigne she was coming in thinking she was exculpating her cousin, hey, he called me at 9:00 o'clock, between 9:00 and 9:30, and told me the kids were missing. 1 She doesn't understand the 3 significance of it then. The police officers do. And, what did they say, " Are you 5 absolutely positive? " They keep asking her " Did you talk to 7 8 him any other time?* " Never." 9 10 Cynthia Wilson, she says that when she 11 saw Tyrone he was fully clothed. And, she also tells you it's raining. And, she tells you the 12 13 defendant has a waist-length jacket on. 14 And, what does Clifton Hall tell you? 15 That the defendant, when he gets 16 dropped off, wants him to take him back to get the 17 jacket. 18 Now, ladies and gentlemen, why is the 19 defendant going out with Clifton Hall to drop off 20 Clifton Hall's mother's friends in November 21 without the jacket? 22 Because he's already committed this 23 crime, ladies and gentlemen, and he's saying to himself, hmmm, did I do the right thing? 24

And, I'll tell you, ladies and gentlemen, this defendant is plotting all the way to cover up his actions.

Talk about the polygraph, the Judge is going to charge you, just like the Assistant Prosecutors at the scene know, all that is is an investigative tool.

But, contrary to what Miss Van Pelt is saying to you, the defendant not only flunked nightgown, panties, he flunked that he put them in the little girl's mouth, he flunked did you kill Tina and Tyrone, sneakers, blood on the defendant's sneakers.

When he's confronted with that footprint he doesn't say, oh, that footprint, that's from when I broke in the window.

He can't remember which sneakers he had on when he killed these children.

Defendant's first two statements.

And, ladies and gentlemen, you got to have a good memory to lie, to keep it all in your mind.

When he gives his first statement it comes out rat, tat, tat, no problem whatsoever, says he left -- on page six of that statement -- that he left with Clifton to take the two other fellows home about 8:30, around 9:00 o'clock.

Then on the final page of the statement Det. Pfeiffer says to him, "When was the last time you saw the children?"

"About 9:00 or 9:30."

Then, ladies and gentlemen, this defendant has an incredible memory, he can remember that he got the car stuck in the piece of -- ditch, he can remember he bought beer here, he can remember he stopped for fish, he can remember where he cashed his check.

Then it comes to the clarification statement.

He remembers all the phone calls he made, he remembered exactly what Margaret said, how he went down to Mrs. Hall's apartment, he went and got a cigarette from Paton.

And, then it comes down to the second statement, the clarification statement.

"Did an Audrey or Shy call and speak with Tina while you were there?"

"She could have."

"Did you speak with Audrey any time that evening?"

"I don't remember."

2·3 2·4

Ladies and gentlemen, he remembers all the phone calls. He remembers even where he lost his eyeglasses. He remembers what he had to drink, where he went.

But, he doesn't remember that he spoke with his cousin. And, that's in the clarification statement, ladies and gentlemen.

And, that's when the detectives know about the statement that they took from Audrey Troutman and Shy.

The defendant knows the significance of that, ladies and gentlemen. He knows just like he knew in the first statement it's around that time that he killed these children, raped these children, brutalized these children.

And, ladies and gentlemen, the State contends the first two statements, the oral confession that Frank Pfeiffer told you about, that's all the State needed to convict this defendant beyond any doubt.

The sworn statement is good for the defendant. But, he forgot one thing, you can't cheat an honest man.

This defendant who thought he was getting over on Det. Pfeiffer and Capt. Lynch, whistling, hey, am I going to get a speedy trial

-- can you imagine anyone committing these crimes wanting a speedy trial?

The State says to you, ladies and gentlemen, that when he denied the red wire, when he failed to tell the officers about the semen, that he had sexually assaulted Tyrone, he did that deliberately.

Do you recall the colloquy that Capt.

Lynch and Det. Pfeiffer told you they had with the defendant about the size of the scissors?

Do you remember them telling you that the defendant first started out -- (indicating)?

Why?

Once again, he's trying to mislead, he's trying to be deceptive, he's trying to lie his way out of this in that confession in which he's so contrite, and he's so penitent. But, he's whistling. He thought Det. Pfeiffer and Capt.

Lynch are never going to write down how about -- what if the evidence comes back and it's another guy.

He doesn't know that Capt. Lynch knows that he's called it a ligature.

After all, when they asked him "How did you put the nails in Tyrone's head," what did 1 he say? "A hammer. A chair. A crowbar." With 3 a big grin on his face. 4 5 Now, ladies and gentlemen, this defendant is hoping that that sworn, written 7 confession was going to be his passport. 8 And, ladies and gentlemen, think to 9 yourself, detectives -- Miss Van Pelt suggests 10 that the detectives fed it to the defendant, 11 suggested things. 12 They're going to suggest two different 13 times which he committed the murders? 14 They're going to suggest that it's an 15 accident? 16 They're going to suggest to the 17 defendant that he didn't mean it? 18 Ladies and gentlemen, if what Miss Van 19 Pelt wants you to believe is true, they're going to be so careful, so thorough, so meticulous. 20 21 Ladies and gentlemen, this defendant, 22 whatever he said was written down. 23 And, the State suggests to you, ladies and gentlemen, when you read that sworn written 24 25 confession, read it through the focus of someone who is trying to get over.

2 4

б

Remember Det. Pfeiffer telling you there was an impasse?

Do you remember him telling you there was a impasse when the defendant was asked about the panties?

But, do you also recall Det. Pfeiffer telling you that the defendant asked, "Did I flunk all the questions?"

So, he's weighing, uhmmm, if I flunk that one --

The oral confession just comes pouring out of him, ladies and gentlemen. And, all of a sudden he has questions, "Are you going to bring me down to Elizabeth? Am I going to stay in Plainfield? Going to get me a mental doctor? I can't remember. Tension. Alcohol. Drugs. First two statements I was fine. A little high."

But, all of a sudden this defendant wants you to believe that he can't remember.

And, look, ladies and gentlemen, at what he says about where the children were. The State suggests to you, ladies and gentlemen, this was once more an attempt on the part of this defendant to get over.
